Trump acquitted 2nd time

State politics: Dems to tie ex-leader to recall effort, GOP candidates

By Joe Garofoli

The Senate’s impeachment acquittal of Donald Trump may have closed the book on his tumultuous presidential term, but the Republican party plans to play a large role in California politics for years to come, even if he never sets foot in the state.

Democrats will try to tie Trump to anyone involved in the campaign to recall Gov. Gavin Newsom, as well as to any Republican candidate running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington after next year.

Even though Trump was acquitted of inciting the Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol, Democrats will use the graphic footage of his supporters California continues on A18

Vote: 7 senators break GOP ranks — total falls 10 short of conviction

By Nicholas Fandos

WASHINGTON — A Senate still bruised from the most violent attack on the Capitol in two centuries acquitted former President Donald Trump Saturday in his second impeachment trial, as all but a few Republicans locked arms to vote in a case that he launched the Jan. 6 rampage in a last-ditch attempt to cling to power. AN

Under the watch of National Guard troops still patrolling the historic building, a bipartisan majority voted to find Trump guilty of the House’s single charge of incitement of insurrection.

They included seven Republicans, more members of a president’s party than have ever returned an adverse vote in an impeachment trial. But with most of Trump’s time in office, he was acquitted both times.

The Senate’s acquittal likely will end the political ambitions of many Republican candidates running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington for years to come, even if he never sets foot in the state.

Democrats will try to tie Trump to anyone involved in the campaign to recall Gov. Gavin Newsom, as well as to any Republican candidate running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington after next year.

Even though Trump was acquitted of inciting the Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol, Democrats will use the graphic footage of his supporters California continues on A18.

Vote: 7 senators break GOP ranks — total falls 10 short of conviction

By Nicholas Fandos

WASHINGTON — A Senate still bruised from the most violent attack on the Capitol in two centuries acquitted former President Donald Trump Saturday in his second impeachment trial, as all but a few Republicans locked arms to vote in a case that he launched the Jan. 6 rampage in a last-ditch attempt to cling to power.

Under the watch of National Guard troops still patrolling the historic building, a bipartisan majority voted to find Trump guilty of the House’s single charge of incitement of insurrection.

They included seven Republicans, more members of a president’s party than have ever returned an adverse vote in an impeachment trial. But with most of Trump’s time in office, he was acquitted both times.

The Senate’s acquittal likely will end the political ambitions of many Republican candidates running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington for years to come, even if he never sets foot in the state.

Democrats will try to tie Trump to anyone involved in the campaign to recall Gov. Gavin Newsom, as well as to any Republican candidate running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington after next year.

Even though Trump was acquitted of inciting the Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol, Democrats will use the graphic footage of his supporters California continues on A18.

Vote: 7 senators break GOP ranks — total falls 10 short of conviction

By Nicholas Fandos

WASHINGTON — A Senate still bruised from the most violent attack on the Capitol in two centuries acquitted former President Donald Trump Saturday in his second impeachment trial, as all but a few Republicans locked arms to vote in a case that he launched the Jan. 6 rampage in a last-ditch attempt to cling to power.

Under the watch of National Guard troops still patrolling the historic building, a bipartisan majority voted to find Trump guilty of the House’s single charge of incitement of insurrection.

They included seven Republicans, more members of a president’s party than have ever returned an adverse vote in an impeachment trial. But with most of Trump’s time in office, he was acquitted both times.

The Senate’s acquittal likely will end the political ambitions of many Republican candidates running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington for years to come, even if he never sets foot in the state.

Democrats will try to tie Trump to anyone involved in the campaign to recall Gov. Gavin Newsom, as well as to any Republican candidate running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington after next year.

Even though Trump was acquitted of inciting the Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol, Democrats will use the graphic footage of his supporters California continues on A18.

Vote: 7 senators break GOP ranks — total falls 10 short of conviction

By Nicholas Fandos

WASHINGTON — A Senate still bruised from the most violent attack on the Capitol in two centuries acquitted former President Donald Trump Saturday in his second impeachment trial, as all but a few Republicans locked arms to vote in a case that he launched the Jan. 6 rampage in a last-ditch attempt to cling to power.

Under the watch of National Guard troops still patrolling the historic building, a bipartisan majority voted to find Trump guilty of the House’s single charge of incitement of insurrection.

They included seven Republicans, more members of a president’s party than have ever returned an adverse vote in an impeachment trial. But with most of Trump’s time in office, he was acquitted both times.

The Senate’s acquittal likely will end the political ambitions of many Republican candidates running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington for years to come, even if he never sets foot in the state.

Democrats will try to tie Trump to anyone involved in the campaign to recall Gov. Gavin Newsom, as well as to any Republican candidate running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington after next year.

Even though Trump was acquitted of inciting the Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol, Democrats will use the graphic footage of his supporters California continues on A18.

Vote: 7 senators break GOP ranks — total falls 10 short of conviction

By Nicholas Fandos

WASHINGTON — A Senate still bruised from the most violent attack on the Capitol in two centuries acquitted former President Donald Trump Saturday in his second impeachment trial, as all but a few Republicans locked arms to vote in a case that he launched the Jan. 6 rampage in a last-ditch attempt to cling to power.

Under the watch of National Guard troops still patrolling the historic building, a bipartisan majority voted to find Trump guilty of the House’s single charge of incitement of insurrection.

They included seven Republicans, more members of a president’s party than have ever returned an adverse vote in an impeachment trial. But with most of Trump’s time in office, he was acquitted both times.

The Senate’s acquittal likely will end the political ambitions of many Republican candidates running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington for years to come, even if he never sets foot in the state.

Democrats will try to tie Trump to anyone involved in the campaign to recall Gov. Gavin Newsom, as well as to any Republican candidate running in competitive House races, which could decide who controls power in Washington after next year.

Even though Trump was acquitted of inciting the Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol, Democrats will use the graphic footage of his supporters California continues on A18.