Democrats are seeking full Mueller report

While special counsel Robert Mueller declined to prosecute President Donald Trump on obstruction of justice charges, he did not exonerate the president, all but leaving the question to Congress.

Republicans are eager to move beyond what Trump calls the "witch hunt" that has overshadowed the party and the presidency, while Democrats say Mueller's findings are far more serious than initially indicated in Attorney General William Barr's four-page summary last month

Rep. Jerrold Nadler, D-N.Y., the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, issued a subpoena Friday for Mueller's unredacted report, giving the Justice Department until May 1 to comply.

severe cognitive disabilities but sit next to students of all abilities, including gifted students, and learn the same things, just modified to a level that works for them.

For example, earlier this year when the class did a solar system scavenger hunt, one group of students was hunt-

Michigan man living out at sea gives plea for help

A few days ago, Chad Elwartowski made a desperate social media plea.

The Michigan native wrote on Facebook: "PLEASE SHARE THIS POST OUR LIVES DEPEND ON IT," followed by a complex narrative about how he and his Thai girlfriend came to face high drama on the high seas.

Elwartowski - who grew up in Tecumseh, attended Michigan State University and became involved with Bitcoin cryptocurrency - said he is on the run from the Thai government, which, he wrote Tuesday on Facebook, "wants us killed."

The reason, he said, is because he and his girlfriend - Supranee Thepdet - have been living on a seastead, a house in the ocean near Thailand, and the Thai government considers them a threat to national security.

If caught, Elwartowski claimed, they could be imprisoned for life or suffer the death penalty.

Elwartowski's story - which could end up as an international dispute - is filled with intrigue, adventure and controversy and is getting coverage by news outlets internationally.

It also is raising questions about efforts by citizens of various nations who seek to set up permanent homes out of the reach of existing govern-
