Investigation into list of illegal immigrants eyes Department of Workforce Services

SALT LAKE CITY — A spokeswoman for Utah Gov. Gary Herbert said Thursday that investigators have found evidence that suggests a state database was breached to create a list of 1,300 purported illegal immigrants that has been circulating around the state.

News media, law enforcement and other government officials started receiving the list of names and personal information this week, creating widespread fear in the Hispanic community.

The anonymous mailing demands that those on the list be deported, although some named on the list have said they are in the country legally.

Herbert spokeswoman Angie Welling said information will likely be turned over to the Utah Attorney General's Office to investigate by Monday.

Intentionally releasing a private record in Utah is a misdemeanor punishable by up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine. If someone stole such a record, it could be prosecuted as a felony with a penalty punishable by up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Welling said the list appears to have

OGDEN — Eva Davila says she is a legal resident of the United States. That fact is important because the Ogden resident's name and personal information are included in a list of purported illegal immigrants in Utah that surfaced this week.

She said she was shocked to learn she was on the list.

Davila and others interviewed Thursday were unaware until told by a Standard-Examiner reporter that their names, birth dates, addresses

HILL AIR FORCE BASE — A day after an Ogden motorcyclist was struck by a car and seriously injured, riders from Hill Air Force Base took to the streets to make their presence known.

On Thursday, a convoy made up of hundreds of motorcyclists from Hill, local police forces and the general public weaved its way around the Top of Utah to raise awareness for those traveling on two wheels.

Although the event was scheduled well before Kenneth Dickerson was hit on his motorcycle on 12th Street on Wednesday, the 50-year-old Ogden resident was on the minds of riders.

"We had someone seriously injured just yesterday, and we're thinking about him," said Jerry Wilcox, president of the Hill Riders' Association and lead rider of the event Thursday. "Accidents like that are the reason we are out here doing this."

Dickerson suffered head trauma and multiple broken bones and was taken by helicopter to McKay-Dee Hospital. No further information was available about his condition Thursday.

The driver of the vehicle that Dickerson collided with Wednesday, Shirley Darnold, 84, Utah's GOP congressional delegation believes there has been a legislative breakthrough that could save more than 2,000 jobs in the state's solid rocket motor industry.

But the NASA authorization bill that passed out of the U.S. Senate Commerce Committee on Thursday has several steps remaining before Alliant Techsystems (ATK) workers in the Top of Utah can start doing a happy dance.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, did hail the passage as a possible turning point for the future of the nation's manned space flight program and ATK's role in building solid rocket motors for NASA.

"In February, (President Barack Obama) announced a plan which would have resulted
