Police probe mischievous SMS rumours

By Siti Hajar

A CONTAGIOUS SMS that has been spreading like wildfire over the last few days about cars full of armed robbers who attacked homes has been pooh-poohed by the Royal Brunei Police Force.

The hoax reading "(numbers of three Brunei-registered license plates of car of unknown origin). Please beware that they are robbers. Stolen things from a few houses with knives in their hands. One caught today."

Dispelling the vicious rumour the Royal Brunei Police Force has announced especially to those who have received the text message that it was fake, the RBPF in a press statement said.

The RBPF further explained that the enforcement agency is currently investigating this breach of Brunei's laws and will continue to do so as a means of identifying the original mischief maker and the sender of the text message.

Japanese investors look to Brunei

THE upcoming Asean Energy Business Forum 2011 to be held this month in Brunei has garnered interest from several Japanese companies, said Japanese Ambassador Mr Noriki Hirose, with the main attraction from Japan being the development of its electric cars as Brunei will pose as the ideal market for this green venture.

As the topic of the utilisation of natural resources gains momentum worldwide, meanwhile, Brunei is also looking into broadening the ways it uses available resources and the ways such resources can be used efficiently whilst venturing into other areas of economic diversification. - Siti Hajar
