ARMSTRONG in 1969

NEIL ARMSTRONG 1930-2012

ONE GIANT LOSS FOR MANKIND

By Lisa Cornwell and Seth Borenstein
The Associated Press

Neil Armstrong was a soft-spoken engineer who became a global hero when as a steely nerved pilot he made "one giant leap for mankind" with a small step onto the moon. The modest man, who had people on Earth entranced and awed from almost a quarter-million miles away, but credited others for the feat, died Saturday. He was 82.

Armstrong died following complications resulting from cardiovascular procedures, his family said in a statement. Armstrong had had a bypass operation this month, according to NASA. His family didn't say where he died; he had lived in suburban Cincinnati.

Armstrong commanded the Apollo 11 spacecraft that landed on the moon July 20, 1969, capping the most daring of the 20th century's scientific expeditions. His first words after becoming the first person to set foot on the surface are etched in history books and the memories of those who heard them in a live broadcast.

Hundreds greet golden skeet shooter

REDLANDS — It was like a homecoming when Olympian Kim Rhode stopped by the Redlands Shooting Park on Saturday.

She was greeted by hundreds of fans, friends and family at the facility that has served as a second home for her.

It was this range where she polished her skills before departing to London for the Olympics, where she won a gold medal and also made history by becoming the first American to medal in five straight Olympics.

"This place, it's really about the people, and the people here are just great people," Rhode said of the park staff where she has trained for years. "They have good targets, and it has what I need. It's a great place."

Rhode was born in Whittier, raised in El Monte and graduated from Cal Poly Pomona. She resides in Monrovia.

Fourth-of-July Band got its start kicking off holiday

By Laurie Williams
Correspondent

The name might seem out of step with late summer, but the Independence Day spirit is appropriate at any concert that features the Redlands Fourth-of-July Band, whether it's in Sylvan Park with fireworks overhead, or at a University of Redlands home game, or even on a jaunt out of town.

The band came together in 1981 to fill a civic need — Redlands for decades had lacked a municipal band for its Fourth of July celebration.

Organizers begged local musicians to help, and the instrumentalists who turned out to fill the gap had such a

UNDERAGE DRINKING Alcohol tied to more risk of drug use, sex, crime

By Beatriz E. Valenzuela

Some may think sneaking a bit of liquor from a parent's liquor cabinet is just a rite of passage, but many experts warn that children who engage in underage drinking are at higher risk of experimenting with sex, drugs and committing crimes.

San Bernardino County sheriff's authorities are investigating three rape cases this year, each of which involved under-age drinking, said Capt. Rick Ellis of the Twin Peaks station.

"In each of the cases, the incidents took place in someone's home," he said. He did not disclose if any adults were home at the time of the alleged rapes.

But this issue is not exclusive to the mountain communities of San Bernardino County.

In March, a Temecula man, Nicholas Castellanos, 23, was suspected of raping a then
