BOSTON » The FBI released photos and video Thursday of two suspects in the Boston Marathon bombing and asked for the public's help in identifying them, zeroing in on the two men on surveillance-camera footage less than three days after the deadly attack.

The photos depict one man in a dark baseball cap and the other in a white cap worn backward. The men were seen walking one behind the other in the crowd, and the one in the white hat was seen setting down a backpack at the site of the second explosion, said Richard DesLauriers, FBI agent in charge in Boston.

"Somebody out there knows these individuals as friends, neighbors, co-workers or family members of the suspects. Though it may be difficult, the nation is counting on those with information to come forward and provide it to us," DesLauriers said.

The images were released hours after President Barack Obama and first lady Michelle Obama attended an interfaith service at a Roman Catholic cathedral in Boston to remember the three people killed and more than 180 wounded in the twin blasts Monday at the marathon finish line.

The two men — dubbed Suspect 1 (in the dark hat) and Suspect 2 (in the white hat) — are considered armed and extremely dangerous, DesLauriers said.

NASA: Water worlds possible

Potentially habitable planets may be covered by oceans

Astronomers have discovered three Earth-like planets using NASA's Kepler Space Telescope, two of them potentially enveloped by water oceans with the right conditions for life.

The so-called super-Earths, Kepler 62e and 62f, orbit a single star in the Lyra constellation, about 1,200 light years away. They are part of a group of five exoplanets (the other three are too hot and inhospitable), and the star is smaller and cooler than the sun.

"These two planets are our best candidates for planets that might be habitable," said Bill Borucki, principal investigator of the Kepler telescope. There could be more planets in the star system that have yet to be detected, he added.

A third potentially habitable planet, Kepler 69c, orbits a sun-

Southland gas prices are below $4 again

Southland gas prices have finally fallen below $4 a gallon after an extended run-up.

And a combination of factors — including strong inventories, a decline in crude prices, the slow pace of hiring and more fuel-efficient vehicles — are expected to offset the usual price hikes that occur for the summer driving season, industry officials said.

"It's a lot better," said Maria Solares, 38, of Covina. "I use my car to pick up my kids at school and when gas was high it was costing me $40 a week. Now it's about $30 a week, so I can use some of that money for milk and bread."

On Thursday the average price for a gallon of regular in the Los
